I had no idea that I had actually already had the ideas and the outline for a book before I came to your workshop. The fact that you simply "turned on the light" in my head, made all the difference. Since then, the book is out, I have been asked to speak as an author at the Girls' school here and the book is on my co-author's Web site with international exposure. It would not have happened without that short afternoon I spent with you. Thank you.
